2. Reading

What is behind a name?

Most names have a particular meaning. There are lots of names that come from Latin or ancient Greek and that have a specific origin. Here are some examples of names and their meanings.

EUPHEMIA f.
Usage: Ancient Greek, English
Pronounced: yoo-FEM-ee-a (English)
Means "to speak well", derived from Greek eu "good" and phenai "to speak". Saint Euphemia was an early martyr who was burnt at the stake.

DIANA f.
Usage: English, Spanish, Italian, Portuguese, Romanian, Russian, Lithuanian

Roman mythology
Pronounced: die-AN-a (English)
Probably derived from an old Indo-European root meaning "heavenly, divine", related to dyeus (see ZEUS). Diana was a Roman goddess of the moon, hunting, forests, and childbirth, often identified with the Greek goddess Artemis. Diana Spencer, the Princess of Wales, was a famous bearer of this name.

EVARISTUS m.
Usage: Ancient Greek (Latinized)
Means "to please well", derived from Greek eu "good, well" and areskein "to please". This was the name of the fifth pope, supposedly martyred under emperor Hadrian.

Fill in the table with the corresponding information from the reading. (Incluir las opciones) Click on the right option from the ones provided.
